

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1744.

late last Night arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Moscow, October 12.

THIS Day, about Three in the Afternoon, her Imperial Majesty, arriv'd in good Health from Kiow; and the same Evening her Majesty receiv'd the Compliments of all the Foreign Ministers on that Occasion. It is thought the Court will return to Petersburg before Christmas, Orders having been given for preparing the Carriages necessary for that purpose.

It is said, that his Excellency the Lord Tyburn, who is speedily to be relieved by the Earl of Arundel, will, before his Departure from this Court, ratify the Ratifications of the Treaty lately concluded between her Imperial and his Britannick Majesty, for the cession of the House of Austria; and it is believed, that of our Troops will march early in the Spring to Germany, for the Service of the Queen of Hungary.

Stockholm, October 18. It has been lately debated with Warmth, in the Senate, whether a Reform should be made in our Troops, or not; and it having been carried in the Affirmative; a Resolution has been made, also put in Execution, of reducing 30 Men in every Company, as well as a certain Number of Officers, who were upon desired Leave to go into Foreign Service; and not, as yet, receiv'd it. It is thought, that the Army will be speedily be laid up, and a considerable Number of Men discharged.

St. Petersburg, October 24. The Dyet is come to an unanimous Resolution, not to proceed on any Business what-so-ever till the Affair of the Augmentation of the Army is fully settled. There is no Doubt, that this Augmentation will take Place; the only Difficulty consists in the Manner, and the Funds for the Payment of the Troops. The Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary from her Imperial Majesty of Russia, has lately propos'd four, what of the last Importance Dyet.

October 24. Yesterday an Officer arriv'd, from the Camp, with six Postillions before him, on Account, that the French and Spaniards, on the 1st of the 10th, had set Fire to their Camp before Coni, had left them six Pieces of Cannon; and that the Dragoons, and Light Arm'd Troops of his Sardinian Majesty, in full Pursuit of their Rear Guard, which consisted of French Troops, the Spaniards having refused to undertake that Service. There is no Doubt, that the Allies will suffer extremely in this Retreat, the Peasants being every where in Arms, and to harass them as much as possible.

Prague, October 31. We have certain Advice, that the King of Prussia, with his Army, is retired under the Walls of Prague. His Majesty has thrown 22,000 Men into the Place; and from the Disposition he has since made, it is generally believed that he proposes to march into Bohemia or Lusice, Yesterday Field Marshal Schmettau, thro' the City of Stutzgard, Post, attended by a Lieutenant, and one Servant. The French Artillery intended for the Service of his Imperial Majesty, arriv'd at Augsborg; and the Reinforcement of Troops intended for that Army, is actually arriv'd at Friedberg.

Prague, November 3. According to our freshest Advice from Bohemia, Prince Charles of Lorraine has the Sazawa, and is arriv'd at Bistritz; where, on the 1st of last Month, the Two Armies were in Sight of each other, and cannonaded very briskly; so that it is believed, that the next Post must infallibly bring us News of a Battle. The Prussians are about 80,000 Men; but it is said, that they are exceedingly distressed for Provisions. The Saxons join'd Prince Charles on the 1st of last Month, and it is said, the Duke of Saxe-Weissenfels inform'd the Serene Highness, that another Corps of Auxiliaries assembling on the Frontiers of Saxony, in order to march into Bohemia, if there should be Occasion.

Prague, November 6. A great Convoy of all Sorts of Provisions, that had been embark'd on the Elbe for the Service of the Prussian Camp, was refused a Passage by the Elector of Saxony, and oblig'd to return into the City of Magdebourg. We continue to talk here, of a great Affluence, of a Body of Russian Troops, in Conjunction with a Body of Pole, are to enter Prague in the Beginning of the Spring, for the Service of the Queen of Hungary. The taking of Budweis by the Austrian Troops is confirmed; and it is said, that the Prussians have had 3000 Men made Prisoners of War in these two Fortresses.

From the Imperial Camp at Haag in Bavaria, Oct. 28. Yesterday his Imperial Majesty reviewed his Army, which consists of 40,000 Men. This Morning Field Marshal Thoring went to reconnoitre Wasserbourg, which is but three Leagues from hence; and the Austrian Garison made a prodigious Fire. A Captain, of Hussars had his Horse kill'd, and the Field Marshal himself, had two Balls shot thro' his Hat. His Imperial Majesty proposes to advance towards that Place To-morrow, and to attack it, in case it be not abandon'd before that Time, in order to force a Passage over the Inn.

Dusseldorf, November 5. According to the last Advice from the Camp before Fribourg, that Place is like to hold out much longer than was expected. Count Damitz, who commands there, when M. Coigny signified to him, if he did not surrender immediately, he was not to expect Quarter; answered that he was sorry for it; but having the Queen of Hungary's Orders to defend the Place to the last Extremity, he was determined, by obeying them precisely, to merit his Excellency's Interposition with his most Christian Majesty, for better Treatment. The Prince de Soubize has had his Arm broke in the Trenches. On the 28th the Counterscarp would have been attack'd, but just as the Troops were marching to the Assault, a masked Battery was discovered, of 30 Pieces of Cannon, which would have swept them as they mounted the Breach; so that the Assault was deferred till that Battery can be dismounted.

Hague, November 11. According to our last Advice from Brussels, her Serene Highness the Archduchess, is relaps'd, and in the utmost Danger. The Count de Chavannes, his Sardinian Majesty's Minister, has receiv'd Advice, that after raising the Siege of Coni, the Army of the Allies had suffered exceedingly in its Retreat. M. Kalkoon sets out in a Week for Dresden; and M. de Dieu is appointed, by their High Mightinesses, Ambassador to the Court of Russia, where he has resided some Time, with the Character of Minister only. Baron de Sperke, Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary from his Britannick Majesty, as Elector of Hanover, conferr'd lately with some Members of the Government; to whom he presented a Memorial, which is said to be of the last Importance.

HOME PORTS.

Deal, November 3. Wind W. by N. Remain his Majesty's Ship the Princess Louisa, and the Outward-bound as per list.

L O N D O N.

His Excellency the Earl of Hyndford has actually left Berlin, in order to proceed to Moscow, where he is to execute a Commission of the utmost Consequence.

They write from Paris, that they have had an Account from the Coast of Normandy, of a great Wreck coming on Shore there, suppos'd to be of some large Ship lost upon the Caskets; whence it seems highly probable, to be the Remains of the Victory.

The same Letters say, that the French King has given the Chevalier Nesmond the Command of all his Men of War in the Mediterranean, with Orders to join the Spanish Squadron, and to hazard a Battle with the English Fleet.

They likewise add, that the King would make his Entry into Paris on the 9th of November, N. S. by Torch-light; and that the next Morning the Duke de Harcourt, M. de Montal, the Duke de Grammont, and the Count de Clemont Tonnere, would be declared Marshals of France.

According to private Letters from Vienna, Baron Trenk, who was lately appointed Major-General in the Queen of Hungary's Service, has receiv'd Orders to march, with the Corps of Troops under his Command, from Bohemia, in order to join General Bathiani on the Frontiers of Bavaria.
